Death in Scranton, Sunday, Of Former Resident of Honesdale.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 1.—Clarence E. Salmon, a former resident of this place died at his home 1008 Pine street, Scranton, Sunday morning, October 30 at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Salmon was well known in North-eastern Pennsylvania, having been connected with the Erie railroad for almost forty years. He was born March 12, 1852, at Susquehanna, Pa. As a boy and man he lived in Paterson, N. J., Port Jervis, N. Y., and Honesdale in all of which places he has many friends.

For the past eighteen years he has been station agent of the Erie in Scranton, serving the company with marked fidelity until illness compelled him to resign his position a few months ago. In 1876 Mr. Salmon married Miss Jennie E. Rodgers, who survives him, with two daughters, Anna L. and Clara E. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. C. St. John, of Southern Pines, N. C., and by three brothers, James E., and Fred E., of Port Jervis, and H. Scott Salmon, of Honesdale. CLERICAL POLITICIANS BEATEN.

Dark Horse Elected Moderator of Presbyterian Body.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Politics of the church was the dominant topic of discussion among the delegates to the Pennsylvania Presbyterian Synod. Each asked the other how it came about that Dr. Bolton of Philadelphia, who was the conceded choice of moderator should have been defeated for the office by Dr. Ebenezer Flack, of Scranton. It was the general opinion that the eloquence of Dr. W. F. Bull, of the Lackawanna Presbytery, had carried the delegates by storm for Dr. Flack, who was characterized as the dark horse. Dr. Bull's oratorical bomb did not burst until after Dr. Bolton had been nominated by Dr. Frank Dewitt Talmage, of Philadelphia, and seconded by Dr. Trumbull Lee. When it came, however, it carried the synod to the election of Dr. Flack by a vote of 126 to 22.

LITERALLY TRYING IT ON A DOG

Canine Eats Stuff Cooked by Government Scientists.

Washington, Oct. 28.—"Trying it on the dog" is now a strictly legal proceeding by government sanction. Some of the scientists in the Bureau of Fisheries who are making experiments on the food value of various fishes and fish products recently had to have some living animal to eat the results of some of their experiments. No human could be found to undertake the risk, nor could any stray dog be induced. Consequently the scientists proceeded to train a dog to eat what they set before him.

The story leaked out today when a question was raised as to who shall pay the dog's expenses. Comptroller of the Treasury Tracwell ruled that the dog is now a government servant and entitled to an expense account.

GOOD THING TO KNOW.

If you now own a Hyomei hard rubber inhaler G. W. Pell wants you to know that he will sell you a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Remember this, all who suffer with catarrh—a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-mei) is put up in a separate package and sold for 50 cents, to accommodate the vast army of people who already own a Hyomei inhaler.
